

Tsunami Appeal Donation Guide

As of 1pm, Monday 10th Jan, Australian donations had exceeded $157 million.

ISSUES TO THINK ABOUT BEFORE YOU DONATE

1. Make sure you research before you donate. Look at websites, call the office (not the hotlines) and ask where the money is going,
2. We recommend putting your support towards groups that are directly supporting local communities, groups and civil society and those that have environmental sustainability, accountability and human rights as core values,
3. Also consider groups that have been active in the areas affected and ones that will be providing support in the long term and not just emergency relief,
4. Consider not donating to organisations sending milk powder because of lack of clean water and lactose intolerant populations,
5. As a donor, you should be aware of and feel comfortable if the agency you are supporting has a religious affiliation,
6. Is the group you are donating too a signatory to the Australian Council for International Development (ACFID) Code of Conduct which ensures accountability or equivalent? To find out go to http://www.acfid.asn.au/code/code_signatories.htm
7. Aid organisations are encouraging the donation of cash and not goods such as clothes and food as these are both expensive to send and possible inappropriate for the impacted communities.

WHAT NON-GOVERNMENT ORGANISATIONS ARE RECEIVING THE MONEY?

Six agencies are averaging 95% of the total donations to all the appeals— these are shown in the table below. Donations to the other appeals listed above make up the remaining 5% of the total figure shown here. It should be noted that many of the smaller agencies are also doing very important work. (Source ACFID website 10th January 2005)

Agency	Amount raised
Australian Red Cross	$64 million
CARE Australia	$17 million
Caritas Australia	$3.2 million
Oxfam/Community Aid Abroad	$13 million
UNICEF Australia	$4.5 million
World Vision Australia	$50.5 million

HOW AID IS DELIVERED

Aid is delivered a variety of ways. The 04/05 Australian Aid Budget was AUD$2.13 billion. Only 5% of this was given directly to NGOs. In comparison the majority of aid is delivered by private firms who operate on a for profit basis. GRM, a Kerry packer owned company is one of the largest recipients of Australian aid money. Multilateral agencies such as the World Bank also deliver projects with Australian aid money. These organisations are known for orthodox development economics that they apply to their policies and programs. This includes small government, free trade, free markets and privatisation. For more information on the policies and impacts of multilateral development banks, please see the AID/WATCH website on www.aidwatch.org.au

VOLUNTEERING

Australian Volunteers International (AVI) is coordinating a register of offers of volunteering. As part of this register, AVI will be taking the details of Australians wanting to offer immediate assistance and to volunteer in the short, medium and long term. Over the coming weeks and months, AVI will work with relevant government departments, current overseas partner organisations and relief agencies to match those volunteers to suitable positions in the disaster zones. If you have access to the Internet you can register online at: <http://www.australianvolunteers.com/home/tsunami/help> Alternatively please call 1800 331 292.

ADOPTING CHILDREN

Many offers to directly assist children orphaned by the tsunami have been made, either through sponsorship, temporary relocation to Australia or more permanently through adoption. Aid/WatchWATCH does not believe these are appropriate responses to the crisis.

AID/WATCH does not believe that child sponsorship programs are effective or sustainable in challenging systemic structural problems that inhibit the alleviation of poverty and removing children from their culture and communities is not appropriate. It is imperative to address the long term rehabilitation / development needs of decimated communities, as soon as the immediate emergency response and recovery phase are completed.

* NOTE ON ADMINISTRATION AND FUNDRAISING PERCENTAGES

The numbers researched by AID/WATCH reflect the official policy of the different agencies. Please note that the amounts vary for a variety of reasons such as the size of the agency, the structure and the activities. Also note that it is problematic to suggest that 0% is taken for administration although this is the policy of some agencies. If you would like more information, AID/WATCH recommends that you call the agency directly for specific detailed information.
